For six years I shipped high-value products at Microsoft and Uber. The kind of work that pays well, looks great on a résumé, and quietly puts a lid on the part of you that wants to make something new.

In January I walked away. Started a rule: try a new career every two weeks until something clicks. Four months in, I'm at seven: florist, muralist, exhibition designer, event marketer, telemarketer, community host, live-commerce host. Somewhere in the middle of them, the fog lifted.

Now I know exactly what I want. To bring everything I've collected, an engineer's discipline, a maker's taste, and the hustle it takes to pull off seven careers in four months, to a team that's building something real.

EXPERIENCE

Maker • 50 Creative Careers

Jan 2026 — Present

- Quit a senior engineering role with no plan beyond one rule: try a new career every couple of weeks until something clicks.
- Seven careers completed in four months. Each one built from scratch: vendor sourcing, playbooks, financials, pitch, delivery, on-camera execution.
- ~180k cumulative reach across Instagram reels documenting the project.

Software Engineer • Uber

2023 — 2025

- Built data pipelines for internal developer teams. Customers were my coworkers. the fastest feedback loop I've ever had.
- Owned data quality + SLAs across multiple production workloads, from ingestion to alerting.
- Learned what "shipped" actually means when the people downstream sit three desks away.

Software Engineer • Microsoft

2019 — 2023

- Part of the product activation team — the 16-digit keys that turn on every copy of Office, Windows, and Visual Studio.
- Invisible infrastructure at planet scale. You only hear about it when it breaks.
- Four years of shipping under real accountability. That muscle is the foundation for everything since.

EDUCATION

B.Tech, Computer Science

2016 — 2020

Lovely Professional University. Placed at Microsoft with a ₹45 LPA offer, the highest my college had ever seen. The only one of its kind. That's the pattern that's followed me since: drop me into a room I don't belong in, I'll figure out how to earn my place.

SEVEN CAREERS, FOUR MONTHS

01 Florist

Sourced wholesale, sold at weekend markets. Broke even on day 8.

02 Exhibition Designer

Turned a SaaS startup's product vision into physical artifacts clients could touch.

03 Event Marketer

Helped a food chain break into wedding catering. Built the pitch process and prospect outreach from scratch.

04 Community Host

Co-hosted a Bangalore weekly club. 20 strangers walked in. I was the one who made them friends.

05 Mural Artist

Traded a heritage mural in Jaisalmer for 10 days of free stay. Finished on deadline.

06 Telemarketer

Live on Flipkart most days. Selling products, managing chat, watching live commerce up close.

07 Live-Commerce Host

On-camera for ~2 hours a day. Learned the script, the cadence, the math.
